Academic Advising

The Academic Advising Center coordinates advising throughout the Webster University network: graduate and undergraduate, on-ground and online, and faculty and staff. This office provides students, faculty and staff with information and tools to understand academic programs and policies that help students fully realize their academic and professional goals. Undergraduate students will be assigned either a faculty advisor or advisor from the Advising Center, who will assist them throughout their undergraduate journey, from the point of entry through graduation.

Services for Students with Disabilities

Webster University considers admission, financial aid, program and activity applications without regard to disability. Disability Student Services (DSS) at the Reeg Academic Resource Center support students across all domestic campuses and online platforms. We assist individuals with documented physical, psychological, medical, and learning disabilities to ensure they receive the necessary accommodations. The goal is to provide equitable educational access and create equal opportunities for success in academic programs. While Disability Student Services does not directly serve international locations, we collaborate closely with designated campus representatives, providing robust support to students with disabilities at their campuses.

Students with documented disabilities are encouraged to contact Disability Student Services to set up accommodations, ensuring equitable access to Webster's programs and activities.

We do not conduct diagnostic disability testing. However, we provide temporary accommodations for students with short-term disabilities (e.g., a broken leg).

Faculty or staff members who suspect a student may have a disability should contact Disability Student Services (DSS) for consultation.[]

Assistive technology and access consultations are available to Webster students. We offer training and access to programs such as Kurzweil 3000, ZoomText, JAWS/NVDA, as well as alternate format texts. Alternatively formatted textbooks, within publisher permission and copyright parameters, may be ordered for students whose documented disabilities qualify for this option as an accommodation. Please contact atarc@webster.edu with any questions you may have about assistive technology and access concerns.
